

ABSTRACT

In accordance with present invention there are provided novel epoxy derivatives of polycyclic compounds. Invention epoxies are particularly suited for incorporation into thermosetting resins. Resins comprising invention epoxies are hydrophobic and therefore less susceptible to popcorning upon cure or use in high temperature applications. The hydrophobicity also makes such resins less susceptible to hydrolysis upon exposure to moisture.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

10023520-121801